

Job Opportunities Faculty Member

The School of Economics and Business Administration and The Graduate School of International Management at Yokohama City University aim to develop the ability to think creatively, solve problems, and use English to adapt to diverse situations in modern society based on knowledge of economics and business administration for our students. We also aim to foster the business management skills necessary for a global community and the planning ability to create new businesses. We are now accepting applications from a wide range of individuals willing to teach courses regarding the management theory of the firm, which is an essential part of our curriculum. Furthermore, we expect you to research the management theory of the firm, teach courses regarding international management, and take the initiative for global education at Yokohama City University. In addition, we would like you to contribute to global communities and commit to recurrent education and reskilling support for businesspeople.
